Late Dreadful FIRE, &c.

T was on the 5th of June 1731, about Six a-Clock in the Evening, that the Fire, of which I am about to give an Account, broke out in the Town of Tiverton in the County of Devon; first discovering itself at a Baker's House near the East-end of the Town? And most of the Buildings thereabout being covered with Thatch, which through the extraordinary Drought of the Season was apt to take Fire from the smallest Sparks, the Flames in a few Minutes rose to a great Height, and by Means of a brisk Northerly Wind spread themselves with such Fury, that several Houses were instantly on Fire.

The Fire-Engines being usually kept in the Church, at a considerable Distance from the Place where the Fire began, it was some time before they could be brought thither and put in order to do any Service, and through the Hurry and Confusion which the People were in upon this Occasion, one of the largest of them was brought without the Arms necessary for working it; and before the Persons, who were sent to fetch them, could return, the Houses on both Sides being in Flames, and a great Quantity of Thatch and lumber Goods taking Fire in the Middle of the Street, and burning with extreme Violence, the People were forced to fly off and leave their Engine, which though filled with Water was soon consumed. Nor had they better Success in other Parts of the Town, but the Fire spread itself into all Quarters, and put them into such a general Consternation, that they knew not where to apply their Endeavours; so that by this Means the Flames took their own Course for some Hours together, without any considerable Resistance; and being extended for more than a Quarter of a Mile in Length, and almost as much in Breadth, near Three Hundred Dwellings, besides Stables and other Out-Houses, were burning all at once; from which dismal State of Things nothing less could be expected than the utter Ruin of this large and populous Town. But when the Fire was advanced on each Side to the Houses of some considerable Merchants, which were high and strongly built with Brick or Stone Walls, and covered with Slatt, they, with their Servants and Dependants, exerting all their Power against it, and being relieved, as Occasion required, with a fresh Supply of Men, and the Wind ceasing, by the Blessing of God upon their Endeavours, put a Stop to the Progress of it about Four a-Clock in the Morning.

It

It is remarkable, that notwithstanding the Fury of the Fire, and the Number of Houses consumed, only one Person perished in the Flames.

The same Day before Evening, some Persons went from Place to Place amidst the Ruins, and took a List of all the Houses destroyed, with the Names of those who had inhabited them, their respective Trades and Professions, and the Number of their Families severally ; by which it appeared, that Two Hundred and Ninety-eight Dwellings had been consumed, and about Two Thousand Persons without any Home to go to.

Soon after the News of this sad Misfortune had reached our neighbouring City of Exeter, a Collection was proposed, and encouraged, with such an extraordinary Zeal for the Relief of our poor Sufferers, that the Sum of 100*l.* was raised, and brought over to us the next Tuesday Morning; and that in a short Time afterwards was followed by several other Sums, amounting in the Whole to 381*l.* 10*s.* 4*d.*

This being the first Instance of that Christian Compassion and Generosity which has since, in so many Places, and in so eminent a Manner appeared, towards our numerous Sufferers; and coming in so very seasonably to raise their desponding Spirits, partly by the present Supply itself, and more by the Hopes it reasonably gave them, to expect other liberal Contributions from the opulent Towns and Cities in other parts of the Kingdom, deserves a particular Acknowledgement; nor can it ever be forgot, so long as any Sense of Gratitude remains among them.

The next Day, at a Meeting of the Corporation, Clergy, and principal Inhabitants of the Town, which was held by the Mayor, to consider of proper Measures to be taken for the Subsistence of the most necessitous Sufferers in their present distressed Condition, a Collection being proposed for their Relief, many Persons of good Substance, though they had been considerable Losers themselves, shewed a Spirit of Charity, superior to their private Losses, and coming readily into the Proposal, contributed very generously towards it. At this Meeting Mr. Walter Broad, Merchant, was, by general Consent, desired to receive all Charities for the Use of the Sufferers, and keep an exact Account of the same. Publick Notice was ordered to be given for all Persons to bring in a Particular of the Losses they had sustained; and it was agreed to meet twice every Week, in order to receive and examine their Accounts.

Some Agents from the Brief-Gatherers had already been here to offer their Proposals for the Benefit of the Sufferers; but it was judged more prudent in this extraordinary Case, to trust to the free Benevolence of Christian People, than to sollicit their Charity in the ordinary Way of Briefs.

Within a few Days many considerable Benefactions were received, some from private Hands, and others from publick Bodies. The King, after His Majesty was informed of the terrible Affliction this unhappy Town had been visited with, was graciously pleased to order His Royal Bounty of 1000*l.* (an Example truly worthy of a Christian King, and a compassionate Father of his People) which was presently augmented with the magnificent Charities of the Queen, and Prince of Wales, and other Persons of high Distinction in the Court. Collections were now making in the Cities of London, Westminster, and Bristol, and other great Places, with such an uncommon Flow of Generosity towards the three suffering Towns of Blandford, Tiverton, and Ramsey, as, I believe, was hardly ever equalled, much less exceeded, in any Age or Nation whatsoever ; and the Lord Bishop of Exeter, having upon the first Application to him, very timely, and earnestly recommended the Case of our Sufferers in a circular Letter to the Clergy of his Diocese in the Counties of Devon and Cornwall, and the Chapter seconding his Lordship's Recommendation, very liberal Contributions were raised, not only in the Market Towns, but Country Parishes throughout these Western Parts of the Kingdom.

Whilst Things were taking this favourable Turn in behalf of our indigent Sufferers, the Inhabitants laboured under another grievous Misfortune. For the Small-Pox, which had been in the Town for some Time before, began now to grow more contagious amongst the People, by their getting in Crouds into the Houses of those who had escaped the Fire, (eight or ten Families, or more, being often thrust together, and almost suffocated, within the compass of a single Tenement) by which Means the Infection was communicated much faster than otherwise it would have been, and the Sick miserably incommoded, through the want of convenient Room.

The

The Sufferers, Landlords, and Tenants, being so very numerous, it required some Time, though all possible Expedition was used to compute their several Losses, so as to settle the Amount of the whole to any tolerable Degree or Certainty.

The Houses were valued according to the Rent they either were, or would have Lett for, before the Fire ; Consideration being had of the State and Condition the Buildings were in, the Loss of Income to the Proprietors before they could be rebuilt, and the additional Expence that was absolutely necessary to make them barely Tenantable, without any Allowance for the Charge that might accrue in the rebuilding of them, either as to the Costliness of Materials, or any Improvement in Workmanship.

The Loss in Shop and Household Goods was estimated from the Particulars delivered in by the Sufferers ; which being subjected to the Examination of those who were their Neighbours, met together in a large Company, and some or other of whom well knew their Dealings in the World, and what Stock they usually had by them, no gross Imposition could pass upon the Managers. But it ought to be observed, to the Praise of many of them, that they were so modest in their Accounts, that they were judged to come greatly short of their real Losses ; and in some few Instances, where there was Reason to suspect an Over-Charge, suitable Abatements were made, and their Proportions lessened accordingly, in the Distribution of the charitable Collections.

The whole Loss, in Goods, and Houses, was computed, when the Account was drawn up, signed by the Trustees, and sent to the Lord

Mayor,

Mayor, and Court of Aldermen, in London, at 56055*l.* 4*s.* 9*d.* without including 2200*l.* for Greenway's Alms-House (which had nine aged People belonging to it,) and a large Market-House, and Shambles, out of the Profits of which one Hundred and Fifty Poor weekly received Six-pence a piece in Loaves. But as this Loss fell upon such Persons as had been deemed the most proper Objects of Charity, and who were now deprived of the Alms which they before received, and must continue to be so till the said Places are rebuilt, and the Charge of rebuilding them defrayed; this Sum, at which the Loss was computed, might with good Reason be added to the former, and the whole set at 58255*l.* 4*s.* 9*d.* and these poor Sufferers entitled to a Share in the Distribution of the Charities.

After this Computation was settled, and returned to London, several other Losses were brought in by Persons, who by Reason of their Absence, (some living remote before the Fire, and others having been obliged afterwards to seek for Shelter in distant Places, according as they had Friends, here and there in the Country, to succour them in their destitute Condition) had not heard of the Notice that was given for the Sufferers to draw up Estimates of their Losses, so as to prepare them Time enough to have them inserted in the forementioned Account. And these Omissions when brought together amounted to 721*l.* 10*s.*

On all the Houses and Goods destroyed, no more than 1135*l.* was insured, in any of the London or Bristol Offices, many having trusted to one of an inconsiderable Fund, erected in the the Town, out of which there was very little (if any Thing) to be recovered.

The Trustees, for their more regular Proceeding in their Distribution of the Charities amongst the Sufferers, divided them into four Classes, which were distinguished from each other, by prefixing one of the four first Letters of the Alphabet to the Name of every Person, with the Estimate of every Person's particular Loss set against his Name. A, denoted such as had lost A L L. B, such as had lost THE BEST Part of their Effects. C, such as had lost CONSIDERABLY, and might deserve some Assistance, after those of the two former Classes had been competently relieved. D, such as neither wanted nor DESIRED, any Share in the Collections.

After all the Sufferers were reduced under one or other of these Classes, the Trustees came to this previous Resolution, which was entered in their Register, and signed by all that were then present, and is to this Effect, viz.

That we will not, in making the Distributions to the Sufferers by the late dreadful Fires, proceed by the Rule of simple Proportion, allowing so much in the Pound to all, whom we shall judge fit Objects of this Charity, but due Consideration shall be had of the Circumstances they are left in, and the State of their Families, and their Allowance shall be greater, or less, in proportion to their Necessities brought upon them by this Catastitous Accident.

It was likewise agreed, that Whoever should receive any Money for the Relief of the Sufferers, should pay them into the Treasurer, towards the common Stock; and that no one should divide any Sum

Sum or Sums, in private, at his own Discretion, without the Knowledge and Consent of the rest of the Trustees ; but that every Thing should be done in an open Manner, and at a publick Meeting.

This was thought proper, not only for preventing Inequality, and Misproportion in distributing the Charities, which a separate Disposal of them, by particular Hands, must needs have been liable to, where the Disposers, neither consulted, nor acted in concert with one another, but for the keeping an Account with any tolerable Exactness of all the several Benefactions, as well as the Distribution of them ; which by the Trustees was judged highly necessary, both for their own Justification, and the Satisfaction of the Publick.

The Sufferers being of several Denominations in Religion, some Jealousies at first were entertained, that this would occasion Partiality to be used, in the Distribution of the Charities amongst them ; but these were in a good Measure removed by the Trustees, declaring that however different the Sufferers might be in their religious Sentiments, yet as they shared the same common Affliction, an equal Regard should be had to all of them without Distinction, and that in making their respective Allotments, one should not have More given him because he was of this, or another, Less, because he was of that Persuasion ; and they have taken Care that their Proceedings should be agreeable to their Declaration, in the several Dividends that have since been made.

To fix every Sufferer's Proportion in all these Dividends according to the Rule that the Trustees had obliged themselves, by the Resolution they had made and registered, to observe, was a work of more Trouble and Difficulty than may perhaps at first be imagined. For after a Person's Loss had been computed, his remaining Circumstances was to be enquired into, and the State of his Family, particularly the Age and Number of his Children, and the Nature of his Business, (what would be necessary to enable him to carry it on again in a competent way) was to be duly considered, before his Share in the Distributions could be adjusted. To do this required, not only much Application, but Calmness and Temper in the Managers, to conduct Things smoothly on, in an even and steady Course, so as not to run into hasty hasty and arbitrary Decisions, in assigning any Sums to the Sufferers, or into Heats and Animosities amongst themselves.

But however, this being the only way, whereby they could either satisfy their own Consciences, or Answer the Intentions of the generous Contributors, or do Justice to the poor Sufferers, they kept to their Resolution before-mentioned, and have been so happy as to make their Distributions to the general Contentment of the People. I do not mean that every individual Sufferer expressed a full Satisfaction with what was appointed him, for I believe there was hardly ever any Sum of Money divided (though the Dividend was made according to the strictest Rules of Proportion) amongst a Number of Expectants, where All, without Exception, were pleased with the Portion assigned them. But in general, our People are so: And gratefully acknowledge that the Trustees have spent much Time, and taken a great deal of Pains, in dispensing the Charities, sent for their Relief in an equitable way. All the Contributions that had been made for them being distributed in the Method I have set down, without the least Deduction or Abatement whatsoever, and with this only restrictive Condition, to those, who were to build again, that they should not cover their Houses, or any of their Buildings with Thatch, as they had been before.

Some Slips or Misadjustments in so many Cases, so various, and complicated, some small Errors, and Deviations from the Rule proposed, occasioned either by want of fuller Information at that Time, or by some Dispute, and Hurry that will now and then arise in the sedatest Company of Men met upon Affairs of this Nature, were scarce possible to be avoided, but where any Thing of this kind had happened at one Meeting, Care was taken, upon a Reconsideration, to have it rectified at the next ; and in the whole, to bring all Things as near to the Rule of Equity as possibly could be done.

To give an Account of every Person's particular Loss, his Circumstances remaining afterwards, the State of his Family, and Nature of his Business with the several Allotments made him in the Distributions, would swell these Papers to a Volume.

But not to insert the Names of the Non-Acceptants, would be an Omission not to be excused. According to their Alphabetical Order they stand thus.

To these ought to be added those of the Third Class marked with the Letter C, who, though they were judged at first to come within the Design of the Charity, after those of the two former Classes had been competently relieved, yet have since expressed their Willingness, to bear the Burthen of their own Losses themselves, and have freely quitted all Pretensions to any Share in the Collections, that nothing of the Benevolences might by them be intercepted, from such as they apprehended to stand in greater Need of them.

Their Losses in the Whole amounted to ————— } 6931 03 02

These two Sums, which taken together, are more than a Third of the whole Loss, being deducted, all the Contributions came in clear, insomuch that the Larger Dividends amongst the poorer poorer Sufferers, and the first of these Dividends having been made within three or four Days after the Fire ; and all the Rest in a short Time, one after another, within less than half a Year, brought such Relief to the most Necessitous, that it has preserved them, and their Families, from being entirely ruined, and has enabled them, in some Degree, to keep on their Business, and to set about the Rebuilding of their Houses, both which without these great, and early Supplies, would have been absolutely impossible.

The Preservation of so many Families from a State of beggary, being altogether owing to that most signal Charity, which it has pleased God in his Compassion to the Afflictions of our miserable Sufferers, to inspire the Hearts of Christian People with ; They would shew themselves ungrateful both to God, and Man, should they not in the first Place give him the Glory of all, and then make the most grateful Acknowledgement to their Benefactors of all Distinctions. It is therefore a Debt of Gratitude that the Names of all the charitable Contributors should be published : And that the Trustees, in behalf of the poorer Sufferers relieved, and kept from starving through their Generosity, should return them Thanks for the same in the most publick Manner.

I have taken some Care in drawing up the following List, and hope there are but few Mistakes, as to the Contributions, which have already been sent in for the Sufferers ; but as there are some, which, we hear, have already been made, but not yet remitted, and others that are still making in several Parts of the Kingdom, it cannot be compleated till all all are brought in ; and then whatsoever Omissions, or Errors there may happen to be in it at present, the one shall be supplied, and the other corrected with the greatest Exactness : And when the List is perfect, three several Copies of it will be taken, one to be kept amongst the Records of the Town, a Second in the Library belonging to the Church, and a Third in the Free-School, that future Ages may see, what a Spirit of Charity exerted itself amongst the People of England at this time, and how thankfully their Benevolences were received by the Suffering Inhabitants of the Town of Tiverton.

An ADDRESS of THANKS, from the Mayor, and Corporation, Clergy, and Principal Inhabitants of the Town of Tiverton in the County of Devon, to the generous Contributors mentioned in the foregoing List.

We whose Names are hereunto subscribed, the Mayor, Corporation, Clergy, and Principal Inhabitants of the Town of Tiverton, in the County of Devon, being deeply sensible of the tender and compassionate Regard that his most excellent Majesty King George, our gracious Queen Caroline, and his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, have been pleased to shew for this unfortunate Town, by timely ordering their Royal Bounties for the Relief of our poor unhappy Sufferers, do, in their behalf, beg leave, with the profoundest Submission, to return them our most hearty Thanks, for this their seasonable and exemplary Benevolence.

And bumbly we request all Persons of what Order, Quality, or Distinction soever, who have either given the Single, or joined in the Collective Charities above specify'd, that they would accept of this our publick and most thankful Acknowledgement of their Goodness and Generosity towards our Suffering People. Assuring them, that as we have used our best Endeavours to Proportion the Distributions already made, to the Necessities of the Sufferers, so we will proceed after the same Manner, in dividing what Money there is now in Hand, and What shall hereafter be sent in, amongst those who want it most: Our other Sufferers who are are blest with better Circumstances, being likewise blest with a Spirit that sets them above putting in their Claims for a Dividend in the Charitable Collections, with the Needy; for whom only by our Generous Benefactors they were designed.

It has been suggested by some Persons, who either apprehended the Damage to be Less, or the Contributions, however great in themselves, to be much greater than really they have been, that the Loss sustained is pretty well ballanced by the charitable Collections already made for the Sufferers. But this Suggestion, which I would not impute to any ill Intention, to obstruct the Current of a needful Charity, but only to the Want of better Information, will appear altogether groundless, by subtracting the Amount of the Contributions from that of the Losses, which lighted upon the poorer Sort. The greatest Part of these People subsisted themselves, and their Families, in a tolerable Way, by their Industry in their respective Callings. Now let the Interruption they must necessarily suffer in their Business, (which was their only Livelihood,) over and above the Estimate of their Losses by the Fire, with the additional Misery of a contagious Distemper, that immediately followed in most of their Families, which were reduced to the utmost Distress before, be duly considered, and then I am persuaded, that no Christian People, amongst whom there has not as yet been any Collection made, will think it a needless, or superfluous Charity, to contribute towards the further Relief of the Tiverton Sufferers.

ADVERTISEMENT.

W H A T E V E R Sum or Sums of Money have been given to the Sufferers of Tiverton, by any Person or Persons whose Names are not inserted in the foregoing List, they are not yet come to the Hands of any of the Trustees before-mentioned.

And such as shall be disposed to send further Relief to the said poor Sufferers, are desired to remit their Contributions to Mr. Cooper Goldsmith, in the Strand, London, who continues to receive all Charities designed for their Use.
